

Poltava V. G. Korolenko National Pedagogical University

HISTORY

Poltava V. G. Korolenko National Pedagogical University (PNPU) is one of the oldest pedagogical higher education institutions in Ukraine. In 1914 it was known as a teacher training institution, which trained teachers of a wide professional background without divisions on specialties. Over time the institute acquired the status of a national university through time changes and reorganization and in general more than 50 thousand qualified educators of various specialties, scholars, writers and artists were educated here during more than a century of our history. PNPU consists of 4 buildings which are an integral part of Poltava's architectural history. Nowadays our university is doing its best to be a part of global society and leave a mark on world's sphere of education.
